VIEW SYSTEMS INC. INVESTS IN VETERAN-OWNED SERVICE COMPANY

Baltimore, MD. January 21, 2009 – View Systems, Inc. (OTCBB: VSYM.OB), a leading security solutions provider, announced today that it has invested into a veteran-owned service firm, Technology Corps, Inc. (T-Corps), in exchange for a share of ownership in the company.

T-Corps is a company whose goal is to benefit from the experience, training and dedicated abilities that United States military veterans exhibit; therefore, a majority of their staff is made up of veterans. T-Corps plans to utilize existing government programs to further train veterans in electronic security, installation, design, marketing and network management.

“T-Corps is about the veteran,” states Bryan Bogan, President of T-Corps. “We have been trained and have become highly skilled working for the Department of Defense. Now it is time for us to use our experience commercially to add value in building a more secure communications network right here at home.” Bryan Bogan is a service-disabled veteran specialized in managing large-scale communication projects for the Department of Defense inside the Pentagon.

“View Systems is very proud to be a part of this veteran employment initiative that T-Corps has made its mission,” comments Gunther Than, CEO of View Systems, Inc. “View Systems and T-Corps are synergistic in that we are working to improve homeland security using newer proven technologies and better management processes.”
